From the author of the beloved Terms & Conditions, British Summer Time Begins is a delightful, nostalgic and joyous celebration of summer holidays

British Summer Time Begins

YSENDA MAXTONE GRAHAM

British Summer Time Begins is about summer holidays of the mid-twentieth century and how they were spent, as recounted to Ysenda Maxtone Graham in vividly remembered detail by people who were there. Through this prism, it paints a revealing portrait of twentieth-century Britain in summertime: how we were, how families functioned, what houses and gardens and streets were like, what journeys were like, and what people did all day in their free time. It explores their expectations, hopes, fears and habits, the rules or lack of rules under which they lived, their happiness and sadness, their sense of being treasured or neglected - all within living memory, from pre-war summers to the late 1970s.

The UK's position as a "soft power superpower" was already under threat, after years of turbulent domestic politics, and now a Covid pandemic is changing how we assess and deploy soft power. This crisis is affecting everything, and countries that fail could potentially be left behind in the new order

Soft Power

ROBERT WINDER

'Soft power' is the power of friendly persuasion rather than command, inviting nations to compete - as they did in the C19th - to expand their 'sphere of influence' as brands in a global marketplace. In Bloody Foreigners and The Last Wolf, Robert Winder explored the way Britain was shaped first by migration, and then by hidden geographical factors. Now, in Soft Power, moving from West to East, he reveals the ways in which modern states are asserting themselves not through traditional realpolitik but through alternative means: business, language, culture, ideas, sport, education, music, even food ... the texture and values of history and daily life. Winder analyses how soft power operates, in its varied ways, from an American sheriff in Poland to an English garden in Ravello, to a Chinese Friendship Hall in the Sudan; the fact that 58 modern heads of state were educated in Britain or the student exchange that took a teenaged Deng Xiaoping to a small town on the Loire. Soft power's quiet ingredients may be the only force supple enough to tackle what the future looks likely to pose - this year in particular - not least the slam-the-door reflexes pulling in the other direction.

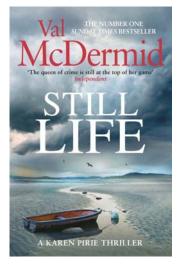

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

ROBERT WINDER is the former literary editor of the Independent and deputy editor of Granta. He is a regular contributor to publications including the Observer and New Statesman. He is the best-selling author of Bloody Foreigners: The Immigration Story of to Britain and The Last Wolf: The Hidden Springs of Englishness. He has also written books about cricket and golf, and three novels.

Robert is Trustee of the Migration Museum in Lewisham, South London. The Migration Museum is shining a light on the many ways that the movement of people to and from Britain across the ages has shaped who we are as individuals, as communities, and nation. as а www.migrationmuseum.org

The definitive one-volume biography of a literary legend

Russian Roulette

RICHARD GREENE

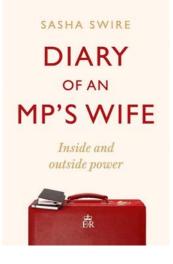

Probably the greatest British novelist of his generation, Graham Greene's own story was as strange and compelling as those he told of Pinkie the Mobster, Harry Lime or the Whisky Priest. A restless traveller, he was a witness to many of the key events of modern history – including the origins of the Vietnam War, the Mau Mau Rebellion, the betrayal of the doubleagent Kim Philby, the rise of Fidel Castro, and the guerrilla wars of Central America.

Traumatised as a boy and thought a Judas among his schoolmates, Greene tried Russian Roulette and attempted suicide. He suffered from bipolar illness, which caused havoc in his private life.

Often called a Catholic novelist, his works came to explore the no-man's-land between belief and unbelief. A journalist, an MI6 officer and an unfailing advocate for human rights, he sought out the inner narratives of war and politics in dozens of troubled places, and yet he distrusted nations and armies, believing that true loyalty was a matter between individuals. ABOUT THE AUTHOR Richard Greene is Professor of English at The University of Toronto and a renowned biographer.

A powerful, moving and darkly comic memoir from the brilliant comedian, actor and broadcaster Alan Davies, star of QI and Jonathan Creek

Just Ignore Him

ALAN DAVIES

In this compelling memoir, comedian and actor Alan Davies recalls his boyhood with vivid insight and devastating humour. Shifting between his 1970s upbringing and his life today, Davies moves poignantly from innocence to experience to the clarity of hindsight, always with a keen sense of the absurd.

From sibling dynamics, to his voiceless. misunderstood progression through school, sexuality and humiliating 'accidents', Davies inhabits his younger mind with spectacular accuracy, sharply evoking an era when Green Shield Stamps, Bob-a-Job week and Whizzer & Chips loomed large, a bus fare was 2p - and children had little power in the face of adult motivation. Here, there are often exquisitely tender recollections of the mother he lost at six years old, of a bereaved family struggling to find its way, and the kicks and confusion of adolescence.

Through even the joyous and innocent memories, the pain of Davies's lifelong grief and profound betrayal is unfiltered, searing and beautifully articulated. Just Ignore Him is not only an autobiography, it is a testament to a survivor's resilience and courage.

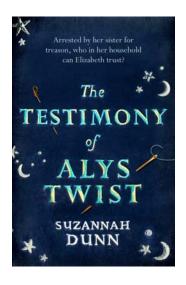

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Alan Davies is a comedian, writer and actor, best known for starring in the hit BBC series Jonathan Creek and his regular appearances as a panellist on QI.

The Testimony of Alys Twist

SUZANNAH DUNN

1553: deeply-divided England rejoices as the rightful heir, Mary Tudor, sweeps to power on a tide of populist goodwill. But the people should have been careful what they wished for: Mary's mission is to turn back time to an England of old. Within weeks there is widespread rebellion in favour of her heir, her half-sister, princess Elizabeth, who is everything that Mary isn't. From now on, Elizabeth will have to use her considerable guile just to stay alive.

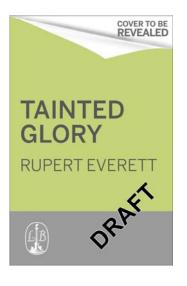

Orphan Alys Twist has come a long way – further than she ever dared hope – to work as a laundress at the royal Wardrobe. There she meets Bel, daughter of the Queen's tailor, and seems to have arrived at her own happy ending.

But in a world where appearance is everything, a laundress is in a unique position to see the truth of people's lives, and Alys is pressed into service as a spy in the errant princess's household. Alys herself, though, is hardly whiter than white, and when the princess is arrested she must make a dangerous choice.

Tainted Glory

Kings of Shanghai is at once the intimate story of two families and a sweeping account of how modern Shanghai was born

Kings of Shanghai

JONATHAN KAUFMAN

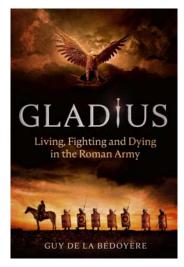

In the 1930's, the Sassoon's had been building their business in China for a century, rivalled in wealth and influence by only one other dynasty-the Kadoorie's. These two Jewish families, both originally from Baghdad, stood astride Chinese business and politics for more than one hundred and seventy-five years, profiting from the Opium Wars; surviving Japanese occupation; courting Chiang Kai-shek; and losing nearly everything as the Communists swept into power. Jonathan Kaufman tells the remarkable history of how these families participated in an economic boom that opened China to the world. At the height of World War II, the Kadoorie's and the Sassoon's joined to rescue and protect eighteen thousand Jewish refugees fleeing Nazism. Though their stay in China started out as a business opportunity, the country became a home that they were reluctant to leave, even on the eve of revolution. The buildings and businesses they built continue to define to this day; as the world confronts China's rise, and China grapples with the pressures of breakneck modernisation and global power, the long-hidden odysseys of the Sassoon's and the Kadoorie's hold a key to understanding China today.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Jonathan Kaufman is a Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter, editor and author. He is currently Executive Editor for Company News at Bloomberg News.

Prior to joining Bloomberg, Kaufman was deputy Page One Wall Street editor the at Journal and also served as the Wall Street Journal's China Bureau Chief, based in Beijing. He also served as Berlin Bureau Chief of the Boston Globe. Guy de la Bédoyère's gripping narrative history gives a sense of what it was like to be a soldier in the army that brought the Romans their empire

Gladius

GUY DE LA BÉDOYÈRE

The Roman army was the greatest fighting machine the ancient world produced. The Roman Empire depended on soldiers not just to win its wars, defend its frontiers and control the seas but also to act as the engine of the state. Roman legionaries and auxiliaries came from across the Roman world and beyond. They served as tax collectors, policemen, surveyors, civil engineers and, if they survived, in retirement as civic worthies, craftsmen and politicians. Some even rose to become emperors.

Gladius takes the reader right into the heart of what it meant to be a part of the Roman army through the words of Roman historians, and those of the men themselves through their religious dedications, tombstones and even private letters and graffiti. Guy de la Bédoyère throws open a window on how the men, their wives and their children lived, from bleak frontier garrisons to guarding the emperor in Rome, enjoying a ringside seat to history, fighting the emperors' wars, mutinying over pay, marching in triumphs, throwing their weight around in city streets, and enjoying esteem in honourable retirement.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

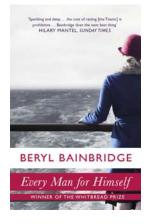

Guy de la Bédoyère has written a large number of books on the Roman world over the last thirty years, most recently Praetorian: The Rise and Fall of Rome's Imperial Bodyguard. He was part of Channel 4's archaeology series Time Team for fifteen years. He has degrees from Durham. London and University College, and is a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries. He has lectured in Britain and abroad, mainly Australia, and is an accredited lecturer of the Arts Society.

A tender and funny graphic memoir about coming out, identity and love by an exciting emerging artist

The Times I Knew I Was Gay

ELEANOR CREWES

Ellie always knew she was different. Contrary and creative, she wore black, obsessed over Willow in Buffy and somehow never really liked boys. As she grew, so did her fears of those differences marking her out. From her first communion to her first girlfriend via a swathe of self-denial, awkward encounters and Tinder, Ellie's journey is told through tender and funny illustrations - like a pencil self-portrait sketched out from the heart.

The Times I Knew I Was Gay reminds us that sexuality is not often determined by falling in love with others, but by coming to terms with oneself; that people must come out not just once but again and again. Full of vitality and love, it will ring true for anyone who took time to discover who they truly are.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Eleanor Crewes is a London-based illustrator who graduated from Illustration at UAL in 2016. Her debut graphic novel The Times I Knew I Was Gay was released in April 2018 and has already taken her to exhibit at Toronto Comic Arts Festival and received reviews from websites like The Ouietus Broken Frontier. A funny, frank and genuinely helpful book about female friendship by the two women behind the hugely successful podcast Call Your Girlfriend – and the term 'shine theory'

Big Friendship

AMINATOU SOW and ANN FRIEDMAN

Big Friendship is a mixture of memoir - a thoughtful recollection of Aminatou and Ann's connection and attachment - and reflections on the pleasures and difficulties of friendship. How do you build something that can be as important as a romantic relationship, without the official acknowledgement of the larger culture? How do you employ those strategies to deepen a sense of satisfaction and connection? Ann and Amina have worked to create meaningful networks (AKA ladywebs) and a culture of deep affection and support rather than envy (AKA shine theory). They bring the reader into therapy sessions, group holidays, personal crises and job developments to show how all of this has worked in real life.

They elegantly top this off with a short form manifesto, making the case that female friendship is a potent political tool in a world that often suppresses information and discourages activism.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS Aminatou Sow is a media personality and entrepreneur. Her work has won awards at the Cannes Lions and the Webbys. Forbes has named her one of the 30 under 30 in Tech. Aminatou also hosts the On She Goes and Color Full Lives podcasts. She writes for Shondaland and GQ and lives in Brooklyn.

Ann Friedman is a journalist and essayist. She is a contributor to New York magazine's The Cut, a columnist for the Los Angeles Times, and a contributing editor to The Gentlewoman. Every Friday, she sends an email newsletter to 31,000 subscribers, who rely on her for links to the most interesting stuff on the internet. She lives in Los Angeles.

A darkly comic novel about a young woman going back to her Irish roots and digging up secrets

Scenes of a Graphic Nature

CAROLINE O'DONOGHUE

Charlie Regan is going back to her roots.

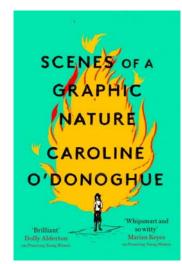

Her career as a filmmaker is on standby, she hasn't had a girlfriend in forever, her best friend is sickeningly successful (and being awkward since that night) and her dad is dying of cancer. So the invitation from Cork Film Festival comes like a sign – a chance to explore the Irish homeland she's never seen. But this isn't just any search for longlost ancestry: Charlie's father is the sole survivor of a tragic accident that killed every other child on the small island where he grew up, and Charlie's one achievement is the film she made that tells his story.

It's only when she arrives in Ireland that she fears his story may have been a lie. The site of the tragedy yields suspicious clues. The friendly locals turn hostile. And what felt like her heritage – her home – starts to become a trap.

With a sharp eye and sour tongue, Caroline O'Donoghue delivers a delicious contemporary fable of prodigal return. Blisteringly honest, funny and moving, it grapples with Irishness, authenticity, and how to define yourself when you don't know your history.

Caroline O'Donoghue is an author, journalist and performer. She contributes to the Guardian and Irish Examiner and runs two podcasts, Sentimental Garbage and The School Dumb for Women. On publication of her first novel. Promising Young Women. in 2017 she was shortlisted for the Irish Book Awards' Newcomer of the Year and the Kate O'Brien Award. The Virago Book Of Women Travellers

EDITED BY MARY MORRIS with LARRY O'CONNOR

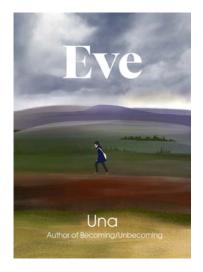

Three hundred years of wanderlust are captured in this collection as women travel for peril or pleasure, whether to gaze into Persian gardens or imbibe the French countryside, to challenge the fierce Sahara or climb an impossible mountain.

The extraordinary women in this collection are observers of the world in which they wander; their prose rich in description, remarkable in detail. Mary McCarthy conveys the vitality of Florence while Willa Cather's essay on Lavandou foreshadows her descriptions of the French countryside in later novels. Others are more active participants in the culture they are visiting, such as Leila Philip, as she harvests rice with Japanese women. Whether it is curiosity about the world, a thirst for adventure or escape from personal tragedy, all of these women are united in that they approached their journeys with wit, intelligence, compassion and empathy for the lives of those they encountered along the way.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Mary Morris and Larry O'Connor have both travelled extensively throughout the world, both alone and together. They live together with their daughter, Kate.

A beautiful new graphic novel from the author of Becoming Unbecoming

Eve

UNA

In the near future, in a world that seems just like our own, Eve grows up in a loving family that is increasingly threatened by a society which seems to be sleepwalking into totalitarianism. After a catastrophe that changes everything, Eve must set off on her own to try to survive and find a new way to live.

Eve is a book of mothers, daughters, human relationships, trust and community, human weakness, conflict, hopeful futures and painful pasts. It is speculative fiction that feels incredibly timely: Una explores the rise of authoritarianism on both the political right and left and imagines where it might all lead.

A new cover reissue of And Still I Rise, first published in 1986, from Maya Angelou, one of the most celebrated writers and poets of the world

And Still I Rise

MAYA ANGELOU

Maya Angelou's poetry – lyrical and dramatic, exuberant and playful – speaks of love, longing, partings; of Saturday night partying, and the smells and sounds of Southern cities; of freedom and shattered dreams. 'The caged bird sings/ with a fearful trill / of things unknown / but longed for still / and his tune is heard / on the distant hill / for the caged bird / sings of freedom.' Of her poetry, Kirkus Reviews has written, 'It is just as much a part of her autobiography as I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings and the volumes that follow.'

'It is true poetry she is writing . . . it has an innate purity about it, unquenchable dignity' M. F. K. Fisher

'Maya Angelou writes from the heart and her language rings clear and true . . . Whether joyful, sad or playful, her poems speak with delicacy and depth of feeling' Publishers Weekly

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

The Collected Stories of Shirley Hazzard

SHIRLEY HAZZARD

Collected Stories includes both volumes of National Book Award-winning author Shirley Hazzard's short story collections – Cliffs of Fall and People in Glass Houses – alongside uncollected works and two previously unpublished stories.

Twenty-eight works of short fiction in all, The Collected Stories of Shirley Hazzard is a work of staggering breadth and talent. Taken together, Hazzard's short stories are masterworks in telescoping focus, 'at once surgical and symphonic' (New Yorker), ranging from quotidian struggles between beauty and pragmatism to satirical sendups of international bureaucracy, from the Italian countryside to suburban Connecticut.

In an interview, Hazzard once said, 'The idea that somebody has expressed something, in a supreme way, that it can be expressed; this is, I think, an enormous feature of literature.' Her stories themselves are a supreme evocation of writing at its very best: probing, uncompromising and deeply felt.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

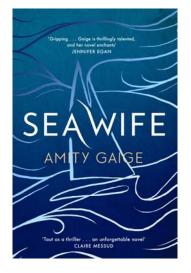

Born in Sydney in 1931, at the age of sixteen Shirley Hazzard began working for the British Combined Intelligence Services. At twenty she moved to New York and there she worked for the United Nations throughout much of the 1950s. She married Francis Steegmuller, translator and biographer in 1963 and they divided their time between Italy and New York. They were introduced by Muriel Spark.

Her last novel, The Great Fire won the 2003 National Book Award for fiction, the Miles Franklin Award, shortlisted for the Women's Prize for Fiction (then called The Orange) and named book of the year by The Economist.

She died on 12 December 2016 aged eighty five.

Sea Wife

AMITY GAIGE

Juliet is failing to juggle motherhood and her anaemic dissertation when her husband, Michael, informs her that he wants to leave his job and buy a sailboat. The couple are novice sailors, but Michael persuades Juliet to say yes. With their two kids – Sybil, age seven, and George, age two, Juliet and Michael set off for Panama, where their forty-four-foot sailboat awaits them – a boat that Michael has christened the Juliet.

The initial result is transformative: their marriage is given a gust of energy, and even the children are affected by the beauty and wonderful vertigo of travel. The sea challenges them all – and most of all, Juliet, who suffers from postpartum depression.

Sea Wife is told in gripping dual perspectives: Juliet's first-person narration, after the journey, as she struggles to come to terms with the dire, life-changing events that unfolded at sea; and Michael's captain's log – that provides a riveting, slow-motion account of those same inexorable events.

A collection of personal and critical essays on everything from childhood to womanhood, literature to visual arts and the relationship between form and meaning into storytelling

Kant's Little Prussian Head and Other Reasons Why I Write

CLAIRE MESSUD

Arranged in three parts, Kant's Little Prussian Head and Other Reasons Why I Write opens with Claire's most personal essays - reflections on a childhood divided between cultures, and between duelling models of womanhood. It is here, in these early years, that we see the seeds of Messud's inquiry into the precarious nature of girlhood, the role narrative plays in giving shape to a life, and the power of language. As the book progresses, we then see how these questions translate into Messud's rich body of criticism. In sections on literature and visual arts, Claire opens up the 'radical strangeness' of childhood in Kazuo Ishiguro's Never Let Me Go, the search for the self in Saul Friedlander; the fragility and danger of girlhood captured by Sally Mann; and the search for justice in Valeria Luiselli's The Lost Children Archive.

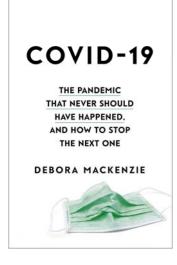

But it is the idea of the relationship between form and meaning to which this collection returns again and again. As she writes, in a time 'in which our ideals appear shattered and abandoned' it is in the return to language and to stories that 'we return to the essentials that make us human. It is to find the past and the present restored, and with them, the possibility of the future.'

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Claire Messud is a recipient of Guggenheim and Radcliffe Fellowships and the Strauss Living Award from the American Academy of Arts and Letters. The author of five other works of fiction including, most recently, The Burning Girl, she lives in Cambridge, Massachusetts, with her family.

A thrilling study of the key elements of great – and fair – leadership, illuminated by real stories from history

The Art of Fairness

DAVID BODANIS

We often hear that 'nice guys finish last', but this is far from the truth. In reality, across a huge variety of situations, professions and time periods, the key elements of successful leadership are in fact a potent combination of listening to others, being generous with power, and mounting a proportionate defence.

From preventing the details of the London 2012 Olympic opening ceremony leaking from any of the thousands of volunteers, to constructing the Empire State Building, to the Allied victory in the Second World War - The Art of Fairness takes a selection of thrilling case studies from history and weaves a sparkling tapestry of lessons that demonstrate the surprising components of great leadership. As David Bodanis reveals with deft storytelling, while bad behaviour might seem like the quickest route to success, mastering the art of fairness is the most reliable, sustainable - and rewarding - path to integrity and influence.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR David Bodanis studied

mathematics, physics and history at the University of Chicago, and years taught for many the 'Intellectual Toolkit' course at Oxford University. He is the author of many books including the New York Times bestseller E=MC2, which was adapted into the PBS documentary Einstein's Big Idea. Meanwhile, numb with lack of sleep and too much alcohol, Jessa starts to seek less-than-legal ways of generating income to keep the shop afloat.

A brilliant, haunting and unforgettable memoir of home and family, from a stunning new talent, set in a shotgun house in New Orleans

The Yellow House

SARAH M. BROOM

In 1961, Sarah M. Broom's mother Ivory Mae bought a shotgun house in the then-promising neighbourhood of New Orleans East and built her world inside of it. It was the height of the Space Race and the neighbourhood was home to a major NASA plant – the post-war optimism seemed assured. Widowed, Ivory Mae remarried Sarah's father Simon Broom; their combined family would eventually number twelve children. But after Simon died, six months after Sarah's birth, the house would become Ivory Mae's thirteenth and most unruly child.

A book of great ambition, Sarah M. Broom's The Yellow House tells a hundred years of her family and their relationship to home in a neglected area of one of America's most mythologized cities. This is the story of a mother's struggle against a house's entropy, and that of a prodigal daughter who left home only to reckon with the pull that home exerts, even after the Yellow House was wiped off the map after Hurricane Katrina. The Yellow House expands the map of New Orleans to include the stories of its lesser known natives, guided deftly by one of its native daughters, to demonstrate how enduring drives of clan, pride, and familial love resist and defy erasure.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Sarah M. Broom is a writer whose work has appeared in the New Yorker, the NewYork Times Magazine, the Oxford American, and O, The Oprah Magazine among others. A native New Orleanian, received she her Masters in Journalism from the University of California, Berkeley in 2004. The Rabbit Queen

DEXTER PALMER

Surgeon John Howard is a rational man. His apprentice Zachary knows John is reluctant to believe anything that purports to exist outside the realm of logic. But even John cannot explain how or why Mary Toft, the wife of a local farmer, manages to give birth to a dead rabbit.

When this singular event becomes a regular occurrence, John realises that nothing in his experience as a village physician has prepared him to deal with a situation as disturbing as this. He writes to several preeminent surgeons in London, three of whom quickly arrive in the small town of Godalming ready to observe and opine. When Mary's plight reaches the attention of King George, Mary and her doctors are summoned to London, where Zachary experiences for the first time a world apart from his small-town existence, and is exposed to some of the darkest corners of the human soul. All the while, Mary lies in bed, waiting for another birth, as doubts begin to blossom among the surgeons and a growing group of onlookers grow impatient for another miracle . . .

SHANE MCCRAE

Sometimes I Never Suffered: Poems

In Sometimes I Never Suffered, Shane McCrae remains 'a shrewd composer of American stories' (Dan Chiasson, New Yorker). Here, an angel, hastily thrown together by his fellow residents of Heaven, plummets to Earth in his first moments of consciousness. Jim Limber, the adopted mixed-race son of Jefferson Davis, wanders through the afterlife, reckoning with the nuances of America's, as well as his own, racial history.

Sometimes I Never Suffered is a search for purpose and atonement, freedom and forgiveness, imagining eternity not as an escape from the past or present, but as a reverberating record and as the culmination of time's manifold potential to mend.

The Gilded Auction Block: Poems

In The Gilded Auction Block, the acclaimed poet Shane McCrae considers the present moment in America on its own terms as well as for what it says about the American project and Americans themselves. In the book's four sections, McCrae alternately responds directly to Donald Trump and contextualizes him historically and personally, exploding the illusions of freedom of both black and white Americans.

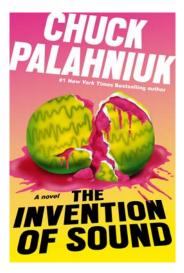

A moving, incisive, and frightening exploration of both the legacy and the current state of white supremacy, The Gilded Auction Block is a book about the present that reaches into the past and stretches toward the future.

Chuck Palahniuk returns with the chilling tale, in classic Palahniuk tradition, of a father in search of his daughter, a young woman with a secret, and a malicious recording that can make 'the whole world scream at the exact same time'

The Invention of Sound

CHUCK PALAHNIUK

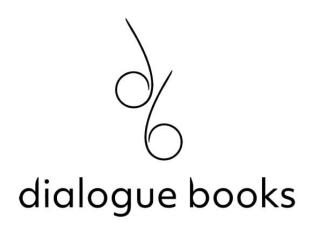

Private detective Foster Gates is a father in search of his missing daughter, and sound engineer Mitzi harbours a secret that may help him solve the case. It's Mitzi's job to create the dubbed screams used in horror films and action movies. She's the best at what she does.

But what no one in Hollywood knows is the screams Mitzi produces are harvested from the real, horror-filled, blood-chilling screams of people in their death throes – a technique first employed by Mitzi's father and one she continues on in his memory – a deeply conflicted serial killer compelled beyond her understanding to honour her father's chilling legacy.

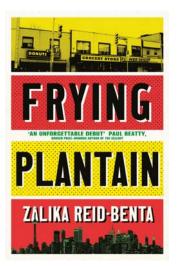

Soon Foster finds himself on Mitzi's trail. And in pursuit of her dark art, Mitzi realises she's created the perfect scream, one that compels anyone who hears it to mirror the sound as long as they listen to it – a highly contagious seismic event with the potential to bring the country to its knees.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Chuck Palahniuk has been a nationally bestselling author since his first novel, 1996's Fight Club, was made into the acclaimed David Fincher film of the same name. Palahniuk's work has sold millions of copies worldwide. He lives outside Portland, Oregon.

Frying Plantain

ZALIKA REID-BENTA

Kara Davis is a girl caught in the middle – of her Canadian nationality and her desire to be a 'true' Jamaican; of her mother and grandmother's rages and life lessons; of having to avoid being thought of as too 'faas' or too 'quiet' or too 'bold' or too 'soft'.

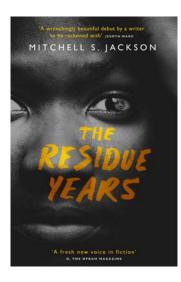

Set in Little Jamaica, Toronto's Eglinton West neighbourhood, Kara moves from girlhood to the threshold of adulthood, from elementary school to high school graduation, in these twelve interconnected stories.

A rich and unforgettable portrait of growing up between worlds, Frying Plantain shows how, in one charged moment, friendship and love can turn to enmity and hate, well-meaning protection can become control, and teasing play can turn to something much darker. In her brilliantly incisive debut, Zalika Reid-Benta artfully depicts the tensions between mothers and daughters, second-generation Canadians and first-generation cultural expectations, and Black identity and predominately white society.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Zalika Reid-Benta is a Torontobased writer whose work has appeared on CBC Books, in TOK: Writing the New Toronto, and in Apogee Journal. In 2011, George Elliott Clarke recommended her as a 'Writer to Watch'. She received an MFA in fiction from Columbia University in 2014 and is an alumnus of the 2017 Banff Writing Studio. The Residue Years

MITCHELL S. JACKSON

In the '90s, those streets and beyond had fallen under the shadow of crack cocaine and its familiar mayhem. In his commanding autobiographical novel, Mitchell writes what it was to come of age in that time and place, with a break-out voice that's nothing less than extraordinary.

Champ is trying to do right by his mom and younger brothers, and dreams of reclaiming the only home he and his family have ever shared. But selling crack is the only sure way he knows to achieve his dream. In this world of few options and little opportunity, where love is your strength and your weakness, this family fights for family and against what tears one apart.

They form a bond built on grief (and proximity) that results in the birth of a son Felicia calls Armistice.

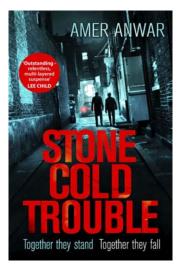

Some years later, Felicia and Army (now fourteen) are living in the basement of a home owned by Oliver, a divorced man of Portuguese descent who has two kids - the teenaged Heather and the odd little Hendrix. 'The Mothers has stayed with me since I first read it, the words and the intimacy of the prose seeping into my pores' – Roxane Gay

The Mothers

BRIT BENNETT

The Mothers is a dazzling debut about young love, a big secret in a small community and the moments that haunt us most.

It's the last season of high school life for Nadia Turner, a rebellious, grief-stricken, seventeenyear-old beauty. Mourning her own mother's recent suicide, she takes up with the local pastor's son. Luke Sheppard is twenty-one, a former football star whose injury has reduced him to waiting tables at a diner. They are young; it's not serious. But the pregnancy that results from this teen romance – and the subsequent cover-up – will have an impact that goes far beyond their youth.

In entrancing, lyrical prose, The Mothers asks whether a 'what if' can be more powerful than an experience itself.

The autobiography of rock icon, Lenny Kravitz

Let Love Rule

LENNY KRAVITZ

Let Love Rule is a work of deep reflection. Lenny Kravitz looks back at his life with candour, self-scrutiny, and humour.

'My life is all about opposites,' he writes. 'Black and white. Jewish and Christian. The Jackson 5 and Led Zeppelin. I accepted my Gemini soul. I owned it. I adored it. Yins and Yangs mingled in various parts of my heart and mind, giving me balance and fuelling my curiosity and comfort.' Let Love Rule covers a vast canvas stretching from Manhattan's Upper East Side, Brooklyn's Bedford-Stuyvesant, Los Angeles's Baldwin Hills, Beverly Hills, and finally to France, England and Germany. It's the story of a wildly creative kid who, despite tough struggles at school and extreme tension at home, finds salvation in music. We see him grow as a musician and ultimately a master songwriter, producer, and performer.

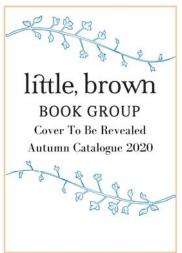

We also see Lenny's spiritual growth-and the powerful way in which spirit informs his music. The cast of characters surrounding Lenny is extraordinary: his father, Sy, a highpowered news executive; his mother, Roxie Roker, a television star; and Lisa Bonet, the young actress who becomes his muse.

The central character, of course, is Lenny, who, despite his great aspirational energy, turns down record deal after record deal until he finds his true voice. The creation of that voice, the same voice that is able to declare 'Let Love Rule' to an international audience, is the very heart of this story.

'Whether recording, performing, or writing a book,' says Lenny, 'my art is about listening to the inspiration inside and then sharing it with people. Art must bring the world closer together.'

Unreasonable Success

RICHARD KOCH

In this ground-breaking book, bestselling author Richard Koch charts a map of success, identifying the nine key attitudes and strategies can propel anyone to new heights of accomplishment.

Successful people typically don't plan their Instead they develop success. unique a philosophy or attitude that works for them. On paper, middle-aged men appear privileged and successful, but are they happy? No

Man Down

MATT RUDD

From the outside, the men of today should be happy. They have it comparatively easy. They still get paid more for doing the same jobs. They are still forty per cent more likely than women to be promoted to management roles. At home, men do washing-up and petrol, wine and bins. Women still do everything else.

But below the surface, there is a different story unfolding. Men in the UK are three times more likely to take their own life than women. Men aged 45–49 have the highest rate of suicide, nearly four times that of women the same age. Their reported levels of stress are higher and their levels of happiness are lower. The evidence is clear and ironic: the system set up by men, which doesn't work for women, isn't working for men either. It's making none of us happy.

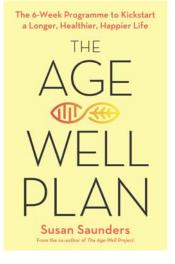

Man Down is by turns compassionate and provocative as Matt Rudd digs with humour and honesty into the reasons behind this unhappiness. Part memoir, part manifesto, Man Down is rich in stories from Matt's own life, and from the varied lives of many other men he has interviewed.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Matt Rudd is senior writer at the Sunday Times which he joined in 2002. Matt's column. Man Trouble, for which he was awarded columnist of the year at the 2019 BSME awards, appears in the Sunday Times magazine. His debut novel, William Walker's First Year of Marriage: A Horror Story, was published in 2009, followed a year later by William's Progress. Mackenzi Lee's The Madness Blooms is a novel set during the Dutch Tulip Fever, from the bestselling author of The Gentleman's Guide to Vice and Virtue

The Madness Blooms

MACKENZI LEE

My brother Bastian was born in a tulip field, or so the story goes. The woman at the church orphanage boasted this proudly to the seed merchant who had chosen Bas as his apprentice. Lucky for me, he took us both.

When a single tulip bulb sold for the price of Amsterdam's finest houses, the flower shop was supposed to be our future. But when our master died, there wasn't even money to pay for his coffin. He, too, had caught the tulip fever.

Bas and I hatched a dangerous, outrageous plan, a plan I hoped would save our shop – and save us. I would dress as a man, take on a new name, and attempt to sell a fake Semper Augustus bulb, the rarest and most valuable tulip of all, to the one merchant in town with the money to pay for it.

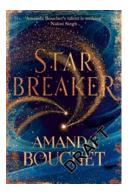

But then I met his daughter, Elsje, and fell in love with her at first sight. Immediately, we were bound together. And the longer I lived a man's life, the less it felt like a disguise. Now, I hardly know what to do. Who to save. Who to become. Who I am.

Ex-England cricket captain Mike Brearley examines the 'Spirit of Cricket' and how the notion of a 'good spirit' can be applied more broadly than simply in cricket or sport

The Spirit of Cricket

MIKE BREARLEY

The laws of cricket, like the laws of the land, aim at a sort of justice or balancing between different factions. The purpose behind cricket's laws, and behind changes in them, is often to calibrate the balance in the game between batsmen and bowlers, between attack and defence, between safety and risk. Cricketing lawmakers are interested in the overall appeal of the game to players and spectators alike.

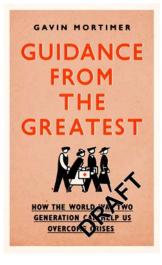

Mike Brearley's brilliant The Spirit of Cricket will alternate between issues and examples within the game as well as broader issues such as the spirit and letter of the law. It will discuss the issue of how far what purports to be justice (in law or in spirit) may or may not be the expression of the powerful within the activity or within society. It will also contrast cheating and corruption, and will reflect on the nature of penalties in regard to each. It will discuss the significance of the notion of the spirit of the game for umpires, groundsmen, administrators, media and spectators - as well of course as for players.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Mike Brearley OBE was educated at Cambridge and captained the played university. He for Middlesex County Cricket Club intermittently from 1961 to 1983, captaining the side from 1971 to 1982. He was recalled to the captaincy in 1981 for the Ashes home series, leading England to one of their most famous victories. Since retiring from cricket in 1982, he trained and continues to work as a psychoanalyst, and is a lecturer on leadership and motivation. An exploration of the many reasons why we blame women for male violence committed against them

Why Women Are Blamed For Everything

She asked for it. She was flirting. She was drinking. She was wearing a revealing dress. She was too confident. She walked home alone. She stayed in that relationship. She was naïve. She didn't report soon enough. She didn't fight back. She wanted it. She lied about it. She comes from a bad area. She was vulnerable. She should have known. She should have seen it coming. She should have protected herself.

The victim blaming of women is prevalent and normalised in society both in the UK, and around the world.

Based on three years of doctoral research and ten years of practice with women and girls, Dr Jessica Taylor explores the many reasons we blame women for male violence committed against them. Written in her unique style and backed up by decades of evidence, this book exposes the powerful forces in society and individual psychology which compel us to blame women subjected to male violence.

The definitive, authorised biography of Lee Child

The Reacher Guy

HEATHER MARTIN

Lee Child is the thriller writer responsible for countless international bestsellers – as well as the iconic character of Jack Reacher. Yet despite being revered by millions of readers around the globe, little is actually known about the enigmatic man behind the novels.

The Lee Child origin myth is a much-loved one: it sees the author springing, fully formed, from the brow of Granada Television. But this is the first time that anyone has revealed the Lee Child arc: from peaceful obscurity in the Yorkshire Dales to cult status as a literary rockstar, through to backlash, the changing zeitgeist and intimations of retirement.

The Reacher Guy is an explosive and riveting biography of a much-loved and mythologised author. In it, Heather Martin looks closely at where Child really sprang from. Based on disarmingly frank personal conversations and years of correspondence with the author, as well as privileged access to archival materials, it is the nearest thing the world is ever likely to get to the autobiography Lee Child does not intend to write.

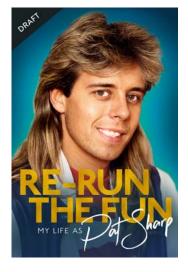

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Heather Martin was born in West Australia. She read Languages at Cambridge, where she also did a PhD in Comparative Literature, and has held teaching and research positions at Cambridge, Hull, King's College London, and most recently, the Graduate Center, City University New York.

Heather is a long-time Jack Reacher fan. While waiting to get her hands on the next in the series, she once read a Lee Child book in Spanish and wound up writing to the author about the fate of his character in translation. The Reacher Guy is her first biography. She is based in London.

The first book from much-loved television and radio presenter, Fun House's Pat Sharp

Re-Run the Fun: My Life as Pat Sharp

PAT SHARP

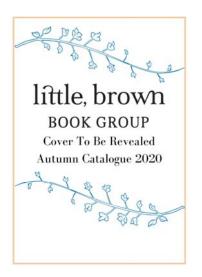

Pat Sharp is a man out of time. For those of a certain generation, he is an iconic figure synonymous with good fun, great hair and gunge. For others he's just that bloke with a mullet. Fame is a fickle beast and, since the final Fun House aired in 2000 Pat has become a reclusive figure, only emerging from his ivory tower to pop up on things like I'm a Celebrity, Never Mind the Buzzcocks, Celebrity Coach Trip, Pointless Celebrities, Through the Keyhole, and Celebrity Come Dine with Me. Until now.

The book takes us from a dingy Radio 1 studio to David Hasselhoff atop the Berlin Wall; from Fun House to breaking up a fight between Damon and Liam at a (fun) house party; from presenting Top of the Pops to the time he suggested Geri's dress be a Union Jack; to masterminding (and acting as support) at the now-legendary Bros revival gigs . . . Pat has the scars, and the photos, to prove it all. Re-run the Fun harks back to a time when life was simpler. Finally, the Great British Public can learn what life is like as Pat Sharp; the highs, the lows, the hair tips, the endless selfies.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Pat Sharp is a radio and television presenter and DJ. He is best known for his work on the children's television programme Fun House (1989–99). Pat is now a regular host on the 80s and 90s nostalgia radio and festival scene, both in the UK and abroad, playing to 200,000 people on 2019's Let's Rock tour alone.

The music autobiography of autumn 2020 - godfather of electropop Gary Numan's remarkable story

Untitled Gary Numan

GARY NUMAN

In this electrifying new memoir, the godfather of electropop, Gary Numan, reveals the extraordinary story of his life as one of Britain's most important and respected musical artists.

Gary grew up in west London, where he was expelled from two schools and beaten up daily for looking different. He always preferred a beating to looking 'normal'. It wasn't until he stumbled upon his first synthesiser that he felt he had found his place in the world. From forming the iconic Tubeway Army in the 1970s, recording number one albums and conquering the music world, to the slow decline that almost finished him, a date with a super fan that undoubtedly saved him, and the twenty-plus year renaissance that has seen him rediscover his creativity and produce incredible music – Gary's life has been an exhilarating rollercoaster ride.

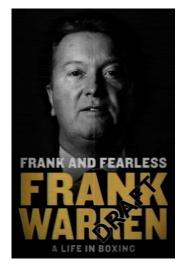

This book will tell the story of one man, several dozen synthesisers, the issues that he has been forced to confront and his two desperately different lives.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Gary Numan is an award-winning musician and was the frontman of ground-breaking new wave band Tubeway Army from 1975 to 1979. As a solo artist he has released over twenty albums, with Replicas, The Pleasure Principle and Telekon all charting at number one in the UK.

The long-awaited memoir of celebrated writer and journalist Barbara Amiel

Friends and Enemies

BARBARA AMIEL

Barbara Amiel's long-awaited memoir is shockingly honest, richly detailed and pulls few punches. An instinctive feminist and now a foe of feminism's political correctness, her own memoirs cover a formidable array of experiences. As a writer of unabashedly libertarian views, she was derided as much for her wardrobe as for her ideas. Pilloried for years in books and television and called every conceivable name by the media, she is philosophical. 'I love fashion, sex and opera,' she once told an interviewer, 'but life would have been easier if my passions had been for train-spotting and stamp collecting.'

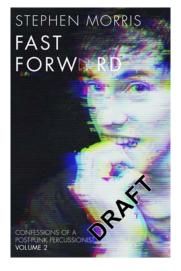

Her life has an operatic quality with a wildly diverse cast including Elton John, Henry Kissinger, Anna Wintour, Princess Diana, Tom Stoppard, Ghislaine Maxwell and David Frost. The epic battle with the U.S justice system leading to the trial and imprisonment of her husband Conrad Black (eventually substantially vindicated) became a litmus paper for sorting out friends from those who were quick to judge and brutal in their dismissal. Friends and Enemies is an attempt to find her own truth: a life that reads like a novel, eloquent, surprising, written with deeply personal candour and utterly un-put-downable.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Barbara Amiel has been a columnist for The Times, Daily Telegraph, Maclean's. Senior Political Columnist for the Sunday Times, Editor of The Toronto Sun (first woman to edit a major daily paper in Canada), VP-Editorial for Hollinger newspapers, and co-authored ByPersons Unknown, which won the prestigious Mystery Writers of America Edgar award. Asked to describe herself she writes, 'She has many Chanel jackets, cannot owns large Hungarian cook, Kuvasz dogs, and is married to Conrad Black.

The Thing Is . . . A novel, a confession, a poem, an autofiction, a commonplace book, a prose poem

The Thing Is . . .

CHRISTOPHER POTTER

By turns serious and playful, profound and trivial, sad and joyful, The Thing Is... is a shape-shifting narrative. The narrative moves deftly from an ingenious theory about the origins of the universe and the emergence of life, to a riff on the poetic power of doorways (and other thresholds); or from stories about things hidden from view or buried by time, to what it feels like to be alive at this particular moment in history.

Beautifully wrought, often funny and poignant, The Thing Is... is designed to be read in a variety of ways: in gobbets, all in one go, slowly, quickly, repeatedly. This slow/fast read is the perfect novel for our fast/slow times. Whatever The Thing Is... to you, it will provide a new twist on the continuing adaptability of the form that we call the novel.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Christopher Potter is the author of three books: The Earth Gazers: On seeing ourselves, How to Make a Human Being: A body of evidence and You Are Here: A portable history of the universe.

He is the former publisher and director of managing Fourth Estate, now an imprint of Harper Collins. As an editor he worked with many writers. including Gilbert Adair, Paul Bailey, Deborah Cadbury, Michael Chabon, Michael Cunningham, Maureen Duffy, Marcus Du Sautoy, James Gleick, Kathryn Harrison, Paul Hoffman, Kate Jennings, Mary McGarry Morris, Hilary Mantel, Mark Merlis, Richard Panek, Annie Proulx, Matt Ridley, Carol Shields, Peter Singer, Simon Singh, Dava Sobel. Kate Summerscale and Salley Vickers.

The stories of two veterans – one traumatised, one blind – who rediscover themselves with the help of a fellow veteran through two epic ocean adventures: kayaking around the Falklands and rowing across the Pacific

Never Leave a Man Behind

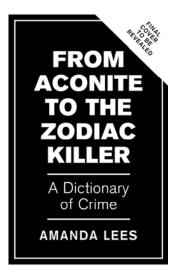

MICK DAWSON

Mick Dawson tells the remarkable story of kayaking around the Falkland Islands with fellow Royal Marines veteran Steve Grenham and the extraordinary tale of his 2500-mile voyage in a rowing boat with former Royal Marine Commando Steve 'Sparky' Sparkes, who was not only a rowing novice, but also blind. Mick was appalled at how Sparky had been abandoned by the system meant to support everyone who serves their country and simultaneously inspired by how he had come through it all. Sparky immediately agreed to Mick's suggestion that they demonstrate through the compelling adventure of rowing across the Pacific that nothing is impossible for blind people, and that injury or disability need not define anyone's life. Sparky and Mick had hoped to break the record for a two-man rowboat between Monterey Bay, in California, and Waikiki, in Hawaii, of fifty-five days, but a hurricane meant that they ended up taking over eighty-two days.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Looking for a challenge in 2001, Mick rowed across the Atlantic Ocean. In the eight years that followed, Mick became one of the most experienced and successful ocean rowers in the world. In 2009, he rowed across the North Pacific from west to east, a voyage of nearly six-and-a-half months and 7000 miles, and for which he holds a Guinness World Record. Since writing this book, Mick has rowed the Pacific Ocean once more – rowing from Monterey Bay to Honolulu with his friend and blind veteran Steve Sparkes. Another world first as 'Sparky' became the first visually impaired person to have rowed the Pacific.

From Aconite to the Zodiac Killer is an essential, go-to resource for readers and even for writers of crime fiction. More than simply a glossary, this is a guide that provides a doorway into a supergenre, and one that is not just for readers, but also for the many fans of film and TV dramas, of podcasts and crime blogs.

A ground-breaking new book from the Dean of Digital Learning at MIT on the science of how we learn

Grasp

SANJAY SARMA & LUKE YOQUINTO

In Grasp Sanjay Sarma argues that the emerging focus on actual 'learning' over ineffectually just 'educating' is timely and essential to our future. In a networked and digitised world, our ability to learn over the course of a lifetime has never been greater. But as a result, the demands for a dynamic, adaptive and enduring approach to knowledge acquisition and application have increased – we can't just 'do our learning in school' and then settle in for the long haul of a narrowly defined, static work life.

Grasp shows why the pace of learning is far more important than the kind of learning; why cramming is a really poor way to actually learn information; how we can prime curiosity to maximise information absorption and storage; and how our knowledge develops through stages of recognition, fluency and creative application.

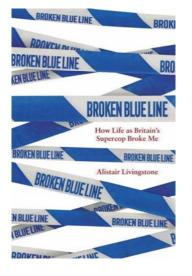

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Sanjay Sarma. Professor of Mechanical Engineering at MIT, is the university's Dean of Digital Learning, overseeing the school's open courseware initiatives. The author of more than seventy-five professional papers, he has been awarded the MIT MacVicar Fellowship and other prestigious awards such as the Den Hartog Teaching Excellence Award and the Kennan Award for Joseph Н. Innovation \mathbf{in} Undergraduate Education.

Luke Yoquinto is a freelance science writer and research associate at the MIT AgeLab. He primarily studies the history of the current sociological narrative of old age.

As a police officer, Alistair Livingstone was dubbed Supercop by the media for making more arrests than any other officer in the UK. But then Ali broke down. Broken Blue Line is the vividly told story of what brought him to that point, and the beginning of his slow, painful recovery

Broken Blue Line

ALISTAIR LIVINGSTONE

Alistair Livingstone was dubbed Supercop. In an eighteen-month period he made more than a thousand arrests when the yearly average for officers is just nine. He dealt with life-and-death situations on an almost daily basis: saving lives as a hostage negotiator; rescuing the occupant of a house fire; providing tactical advice during some of the most violent incidents; clinging onto a suicidal man hanging from the roof of a multistorey car park. Ali was also engulfed in the aftermath of losing a colleague, and witnessed the unprecedented response to the serial killings in Ipswich and the profound effect it had on the community and the police.

But then an agonising and debilitating mental breakdown left the seemingly indestructible sergeant desperately seeking help. After almost two decades Ali left the force. Broken Blue Line offers an insight into the real world of modern policing: the demands and challenges faced by frontline officers throughout the UK. Ali's hope is that he will help to remove some of the lingering stigma that attaches to mental illness within the police.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Alistair Livingstone joined the police force, in Ipswich, in 2001. He went on to make more arrests than any other police officer and was dubbed Supercop in the media. He has recently retired from the job he loved as a result of mental health issues, but is on the road to recovery.

A long-overdue book honouring the remarkable achievements of key black British individuals over many centuries, in collaboration with the 100 Great Black Britons campaign founded and run by Patrick Vernon OBE

100 Great Black Britons

PATRICK VERNON & ANGELINA OSBORNE

Patrick Vernon's landmark 100 Great Black Britons campaign of 2003 was one of the most successful movements to focus on the role of people of African and Caribbean descent in British history. Frustrated by the widespread and continuing exclusion of the black British community from the mainstream popular conception of 'Britishness', Vernon set up a public poll in which anyone could vote for the black Briton they most admired.

The response to this campaign was incredible. As a result, a number of black historical figures were included on the national school curriculum and had statues and memorials erected and blue plaques put up in their honour. Mary Seacole was adopted by the Royal College of Nursing and was given the same status as Florence Nightingale.

With this book, Vernon and Osborne have relaunched the campaign. 100 Great Black Britons includes an updated list of names and accompanying portraits. Each entry explores the individual's contribution to British history – a contribution that too often has been either overlooked or dismissed.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Patrick Vernon is a Clore and Winston Churchill Fellow, a fellow at the Imperial War Museum, Royal Historical Society and a former associate fellow for the Department of the History of Medicine at Warwick University. He was awarded an OBE in 2012 for \mathbf{his} work tackling health inequalities for ethnic minority communities in Britain. Since 2010 he has been leading the campaign for Windrush Day and in 2018 kick-started the campaign for an amnesty for the Windrush Generation.

Angelina Osborne is an independent researcher and heritage consultant. She received her PhD in History from the Wilberforce Institute for the Study of Slavery and Emancipation, University of Hull in 2014.

A compelling, perspective-shifting work by a top behavioural neuroscientist on the science of how we sense our bodies – how we feel the world beneath the skin – and how our bodies create the very experience of being alive

How You Feel

JAMES TRESILIAN

Close your eyes and ask yourself, 'What do I feel?'

What was your experience? Did you feel the physical presence of your body – its size, its shape? Did you feel any of your body's needs, like hunger or thirst? You probably also had a sense of whether you were feeling healthy or unwell.

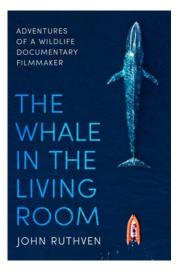

All of these sensations are kinds of body feelings, and although many of them are always present, in modern life we don't pay much attention to them. But our experiences, our thoughts and our entire minds are dependent upon and shaped by our bodies and what they do.

How are all the bodily feelings produced? What are they telling us and can they be trusted? This book answers these questions and takes you on a tour through your innards and into the deep recesses of the mind, and from there to your conscious thoughts, perceptions and emotions.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

James Tresilian is a behavioural neuroscientist and one of the world's leading experts in the of human study sensory perception and the control of bodily movement. He is а Professor and former Chair of the Department of Psychology at the University of Warwick, UK and Honorary Professor at the University of Queensland, Australia.

The Whale in Your Living Room follows the adventures of BBC Blue Planet producer, John Ruthven

The Whale in Your Living Room

JOHN RUTHVEN

For many, the oceans are missing pieces in the story of life on Earth. Quite literally immersed in his subject, John can finish this story, and who better? He is the only producer to have worked full time on Blue Planet series I and II, and has produced nearly fifty other films about the sea.

With first-hand experience he feels the loneliness of whale calves in the blue, the fear as seals dodge great white sharks near the coast, or the curiosity of octopus staring back at the camera. His journey takes us through the blue rings of South Pacific coral atolls, gives us submarine rides into the abyss with ancient life forms, and encounters so close with singing humpback whales that the water will bounce at the bottom of your virtual dive mask. Through each stunning adventure John draws out important insights into what is presently known about how the sea, and our whole blue planet works.

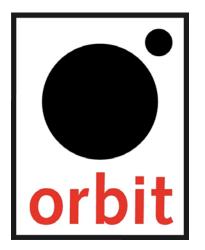

On our journey, memorable, touching and often funny moments with film crews at sea will help to explain our current understanding of the ocean and how little we still know about our home planet.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

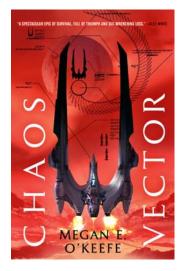

John Ruthven's passion is to engage people through film to tell great stories. Having completed a PhD in Zoology, he began his career as a professionally trained BBC sound engineer. Over the years he has written, produced and directed audience-engaging awardand winning shows for BBC, Discovery, National Geographic, PBS and many other well-known broadcasters. In 2015 he received an Emmy for best environmental film in the USA for Mysteries of the Coral Canyon.

His work on Blue Planet II was ground-breaking. Not only did he write David Attenborough's script but by producing the episode 'Big Blue' on open oceans, they captured the first ever images of mother and calf sperm whales diving into the abyss, using custom-made camera systems attached to the whales. It is one of the most widely seen wildlife films of all time.

The Bone Shard Daughter

ANDREA STEWART

The Sukai dynasty has ruled the Empire for over a century, their mastery of bone shard magic powering the animal-like constructs that maintain law and order. But now the emperor's rule is failing, and revolution is sweeping across the Empire's many islands.

Lin is the emperor's daughter, but her father won't recognise her as heir unless she can recover the childhood memories she lost after a mysterious illness. Trapped in a palace of locked doors and dark secrets, Lin vows to prove her worth by mastering the art of bone shard magic.

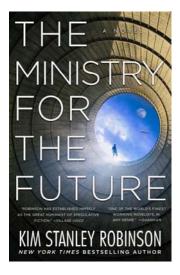

Yet such magic carries a great cost, and when the revolution reaches the gates of the palace itself, Lin must decide how far she is willing to go to claim her birthright – and save her people.

With its diverse cast of loveable characters, a unique magic system and a beautifully realised world, Bone Shard Daughter marks the debut of a major new voice in epic fantasy.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Andrea Stewart is the Chinese American daughter of immigrants, and was raised in a number of places across the United States. Her parents always emphasised science and education, so she spent her childhood immersed in Star Trek and oddsmelling library books. When her (admittedly ambitious) dreams of becoming a dragon slaver didn't pan out, she instead turned to writing books. She now lives in sunny California, and in addition to writing, can be found herding cats, looking at birds and falling down research rabbit holes.

The Once and Future Witches

ALIX E. HARROW

In 1893, there's no such thing as witches. There used to be, in the wild, dark days before the burnings began, but now witching is nothing but tidy charms and nursery rhymes. If the modern woman wants any measure of power, she must find it at the ballot box.

But when the Eastwood sisters – James Juniper, Agnes Amaranth and Beatrice Belladonna – join the suffragists of New Salem, they begin to pursue the forgotten words and ways that might turn the women's movement into the witch's movement. Stalked by shadows and sickness, hunted by forces who will not suffer a witch to vote – and perhaps not even to live – the sisters will need to delve into the oldest magics, draw new alliances, and heal the bond between them if they want to survive.

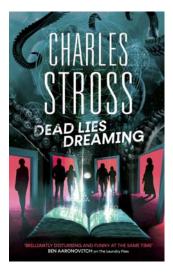

There's no such thing as witches. But there will be.
