hodder press

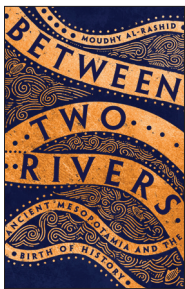

Hodder Press is the home of authoritative narrative non-fiction at Hodder & Stoughton. Our imprint celebrates expert thinking and distinctive voices. We love high quality non-fiction that asks big questions, challenges perspectives and brings an expert view to essential topics. Our focus is on books where the combination of author and subject creates a remarkable alchemy, opening up new vistas or unlocking a complex subject, narrated by a distinct and interesting voice. We're incredibly proud that 2025, our first full year of publishing, has seen stand-out successes, including three Sunday Times bestsellers and major prize longlistings in the first half of the year alone.

We are a boutique list within one of the world's biggest publishing groups, Hachette. Our team are highly experienced in working with authors who are looking to share their ideas with a truly broad audience, from providing close editorial support to creative publicity and marketing campaigns.

With an international outlook and an emphasis on beautiful design, Hodder Press publishes experts from around the world in science and psychology, cultural and natural history, current affairs and social sciences as well as the very best of nature writing and memoir. Hodder Press is proud to be redressing the gender balance in serious non-fiction and we strive for our books and authors to represent the breadth and depth of non-fiction thinking and writing internationally. Our authors include Venki Ramakrishnan, Tristan Gooley, Suzanne O'Sullivan, Michael Morpurgo, Lucy Easthope, Clive Oppenheimer, Moudhy Al-Rashid, Gabriel Zuchtriegel and Kate Fox.

Our Commissioning Editors

Kirty Topiwala

Executive Publisher

Kirty.Topiwala@hodder.co.uk

Prior to Hodder, I spent eight years at the medical charity Wellcome. I directed the Wellcome Book Prize and turned Wellcome's book publishing into a trade-facing list, leading to successes including Forensics by Val McDermid, Being Mortal by Atul Gawande and Adventures in Human Being by Gavin Francis. I joined Hodder in 2019 to lead the general non-fiction, overseeing and publishing a diverse range of bestsellers and prize-shortlisted titles such as Immune by Philipp Dettmer, Lucy Easthope's When the Dust Settles and Venki Ramakrishnan's Why We Die. In 2025 I published the Sunday Times bestsellers Spring by Michael Morpurgo, The Age of Diagnosis by Suzanne O'Sullivan and The Buried City by Gabriel Zuchtriegel.

I am looking for... bold cultural history, popular science and psychology, expert-led memoir and nature writing.

Anna Baty

Editorial Director
(On parental leave from October 2025)
Anna.Baty@hodder.co.uk

I have worked in editorial roles for over thirteen years and was formerly an editor at The Bodley Head (Penguin Random House) where I published books including The Gendered Brain by Gina Rippon and Seven Signs of Life by Aoife Abbey. After a stint at the innovation foundation Nesta, I joined Hodder & Stoughton in 2020 where my publishing includes Sunday Times bestseller Vaxxers by Sarah Gilbert and Catherine Green, Between Two Rivers by Moudhy Al-Rashid and Blackwell's Book of the Month Mountains of Fire by Clive Oppenheimer. Forthcoming books include Finding Albion by Zakia Sewell, Synchronized by Ruth Feldman and The World Beneath Our Feet by Frank Ashwood.

I am looking for... popular science (anything from neuroscience to plate tectonics and everything in between), ancient and modern history, nature and natural history, unusual cultural or underdog histories and biographies, arts and humanities, technology and its impact on society.

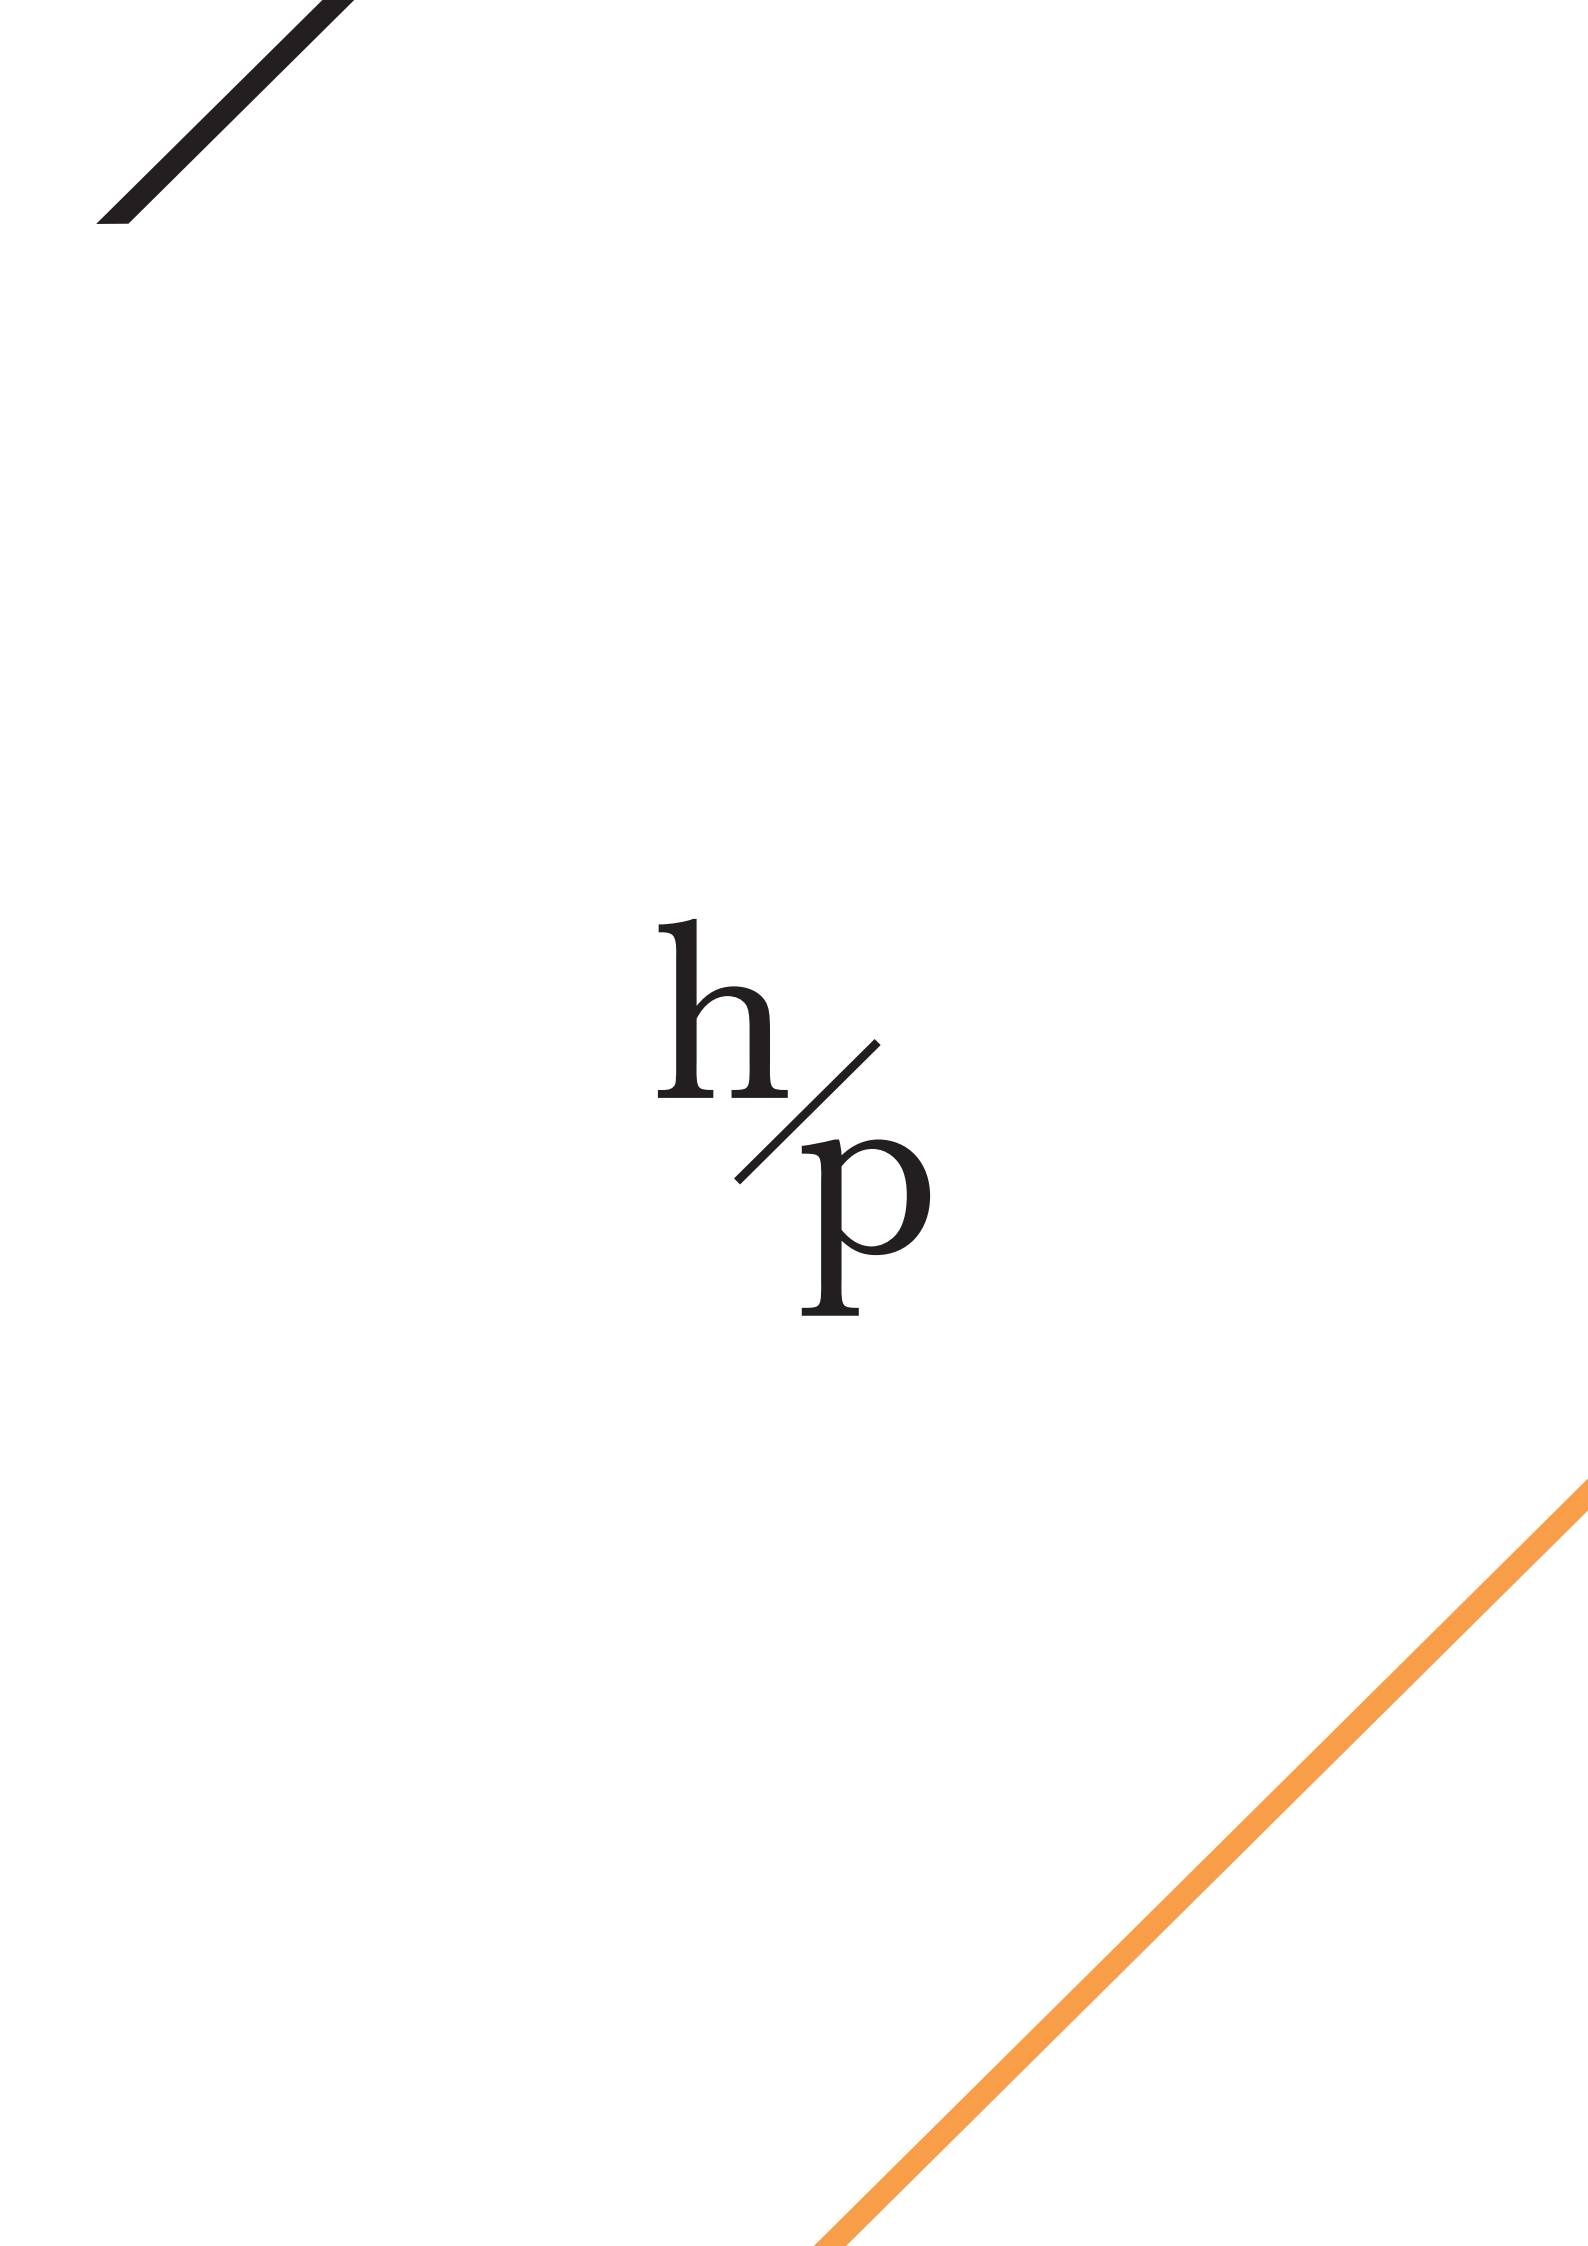

Kim Walker

Editorial Director
(Parental leave cover)
Kim.Walker@hodder.co.uk

Prior to joining Hodder Press, I was Editorial Director at Penguin Press, publishing leading authors in science, neuroscience, economics, politics, history, philosophy and psychology, including Vanished by Sadiya Qureshi, Empire of AI by Karen Hao, Andrew Ross Sorkin's 1929: The Inside Story of The Greatest Crash in Wall Street History, an updated edition of Freakonomics by Steven D. Levitt and Stephen J. Dubner, and books by David Spiegelhalter and Daniel Susskind. For eight years I was Owner and Editorial Director at Zed Books, launching a trade-facing list and publishing Kehinde Andrews, Back to Black: Retelling Black Radicalism for the 21st Century, and Maggie Nelson, Jane: A Murder and her poetry collections. I was also Publisher at Manchester University Press, where I led their Trade publishing of award-winning books.

I am looking for... ambitious non-fiction in science, neuroscience, politics, history, philosophy and economics, and bold new authors who make complex ideas compelling and accessible.
